Big Beer Truck Breaks Off Pole

The front end of a large truck, loaded with beer, en route from Pottsville to Washington, D. C., was smashed when the machine left the Harrisburg road and broke off a telephone pole near the home of E. J. Dougherty, one mile north of here, at 6 o'clock this morning.

The driver of the truck, said to have been Tony Distello, of Pottsville, is believed to have dozed at the wheel and lost control. As the truck crashed into the pole, the end of the pole, broken off near the road, was knocked into the air and the machine passed beneath it.

The radiator and front axle of the machine were damaged, but the truck was able to proceed under its own power.

CHICK IS HATCHED WITH FOUR LEGS

FOREST GROUP GET TESTS FOR STIFF TASKS

Former Gettysburg Man Says C. C. C. Receive First Hardening Training.

SPIRITS HIGH DESPITE RAIN

Lewis E. Staley, state secretary of forests and waters, formerly of Gettysburg, today reported that the first contingent of forest workers, 3,000 of them, who set up 19 camps in state forests of Pennsylvania during the past week, experienced an initial hardening process that has tested their fitness to stick to the job.

The reforestation camps nearest Gettysburg are at Mont Alto and at Pine Grove Furnace.

Rainy days and cold nights were the least of their trials. Trucks carrying tents and other supplies bogged down in the muddy forest roads and supplies had to be packed into camps sometimes for distances of a half mile or more. Although located among thousands of acres of growing timber, the camps nevertheless experienced a dearth of dry firewood.

Foresters Help

State foresters and rangers were on hand to assist in getting the camps established and helped provide firewood, loaned tools, and otherwise helped the men, many of whom had recently been taken off the city streets, to accustom themselves to the woodland environment.

Although some of the forest workers were temporarily discouraged by the bleak prospects of a rain-drenched wilderness, according to reports from most of the forestry officials, the majority dug in and attempted to make themselves as (Continued on Page Five)

The legation heard rumors that the Japanese will attempt to occupy the town. About 30 missionaries comprise the American community there.

Roosevelt Takes Slap At Germany and Japan In New Appeal For World Peace

Washington, May 16 (AP).—President Roosevelt asked the world today to give up offensive weapons of war and unite for peace and economic recovery.

In a message immediately interpreted on Capitol Hill as constituting particularly plain speaking to Germany, the president admonished all foreign potentates to give up "petty" national aims or the civilized world would know where to place the blame.

It proposed that no armed troops whatsoever should hereafter cross any frontier save when a neighbor had so offended by breaking her armament agreements.

It backed the MacDonald proposal for a consultative pact for surety which the United States had heretofore shunned and which France much desired, but it also proposed that all nations hold armaments within treaty limits which France has been accused of failing to do.

It mentioned no names but denounced foreign invasion at a time when the Japanese advance in China is in full swing.

Denounces Invasions

It laid down the doctrine of non-invasion so pointedly as to preclude by implication further United States marine incursions into Latin America.

It asked specifically for success of the Geneva arms conference and the London economic conference and proposed a later conference to carry forth the work begun there.

A copy of the message was prepared for submission to congress for its information and administration congressional leaders at once hailed it as an epochal step of leadership for peace. The message was signed just "Franklin D. Roosevelt."

It went forth early today in direct language without the usual protection of diplomatic code.

REV. D. F. PUTMAN TO DELIVER HIS BACCALAUREATE

Sermon In College Lutheran Church May 28; Commencement June 1.

STATE PAGEANT TO BE PRESENTED

The Rev. Dwight F. Putman will deliver the baccalaureate sermon to the graduates of the Gettysburg high school, Sunday evening, May 28, in the College Lutheran church and the high school grads will receive their diplomas on the evening of June 1, in the high school auditorium, Prof. Guile W. Lefever, principal of the high school, announced this morning.

The commencement exercises this year, as in the past three years, will be in the form of a pageant, a distinct departure from the customary and routine programs usually followed by high schools. All members of the senior class comprise the cast.

This year's pageant will commemorate the 250th anniversary of the founding of the State of Pennsylvania. It will be presented for the community on the night of May 31 and on the following night for the graduates' parents and friends, the high school auditorium being too small to accommodate all those planning to see the affair, at one performance.

The pageant consists of three parts. The first part will illustrate the founding and naming of the state. It will be divided into three scenes: King Charles' court, granting of the charter, the great treaty with the Indians and a scene showing William Penn with some of his friends.

The second part will illustrate "Pennsylvania Promotes Progress." This will consist of charts, talks, progress made by the state in education, industry, transportation, fine arts and agriculture.

Part three will illustrate the "Opportunities for service in Pennsylvania."

Interpretive dancing and tableaux will intersperse the pageant scenes.

Dr. Thomas L. Cline will address the students, followed by the singing of Pennsylvania songs and the presentation of diplomas by Professor Lloyd C. Keefeauver, superintendent of schools.

There will be displays of school work throughout the high school building available to inspection by the public. The displays will consist of maps, charts, note books, art work and projects, all creations of high school students. A special display will comprise booths showing progress in education, coal mining, agriculture, fine arts and others by the high school students and a special art exhibit by the grade pupils.

Senior examinations will start on May 24 and other exams will start on May 26. There will be no classes on Memorial Day, the pupils participating in Memorial Day exercises at the National cemetery.

Pittsburgh, May 16 (AP)—In bold defiance of police John Maug, escaped convict and gang leader, walked unmasked into a fashionable hotel Monday night and robbed a restaurant cashier of $300.

Shielding a gun from forty patrons seated at tables, Maug pointed it at Mrs. Helen Loevenich, 28 and quietly warned her against making an outcry.

None of the diners was aware of a holdup until Maug and two companions were speeding away in an automobile.

Mrs. Loevenich, the cashier, identified a police picture of Maug as the man who held her up. Two waitresses corroborated the identification.

THIRD OF NAVY
IDLE AFTER JULY 1

Economy Given As Reason
For Cut; Hope To Save $55,000,000.

Washington, May 16 (AP)—One-third of the navy's ships and aircraft will be laid up in reserve commission after July 1.

Orders for the "rotating reserves" were issued Monday by Admiral William V. Pratt, chief of naval operations. Under his instructions the ships involved will be tied up six months at a time, undergoing their routine overhauling.

Economy was given as the reason for the plan. Combined with shore station closings, the program is intended to save $55,000,000, bringing the navy budget, exclusive of possible new construction, to $270,000,000 for the next fiscal year.

Keeping only two-thirds of the total fleet in operation at any time, it was said, will permit the navy to cut its personnel from 79,799, the present figure, to 77,000. Vessels in commission will carry seventy-seven per cent of their maximum enlisted strength.

Monday's orders carry the rotating plan forward until January, 1936. The program already has been tried out with destroyers and lesser craft but now will apply as well to battleships, cruisers and aircraft carriers.

arms conference and the economic conference soon to meet at London. He proposed: "Adoption at Geneva of the MacDonald plan to reduce the armament of France, stabilize those of Germany and set up a consultative pact to promote peace." An agreement in the meantime that no nation shall increase its existing armaments and a promise by all nations provided that "they will send no armed forces of whatsoever nature across their frontiers."

Can Block Peace
"Common sense points out that if any strong nation refuses to join with genuine sincerity in these concerted efforts for political and economic peace, the one at Geneva and the other at London, progress can be obstructed and ultimately blocked," said Mr. Roosevelt.

In such event, the civilized world, seeking both forms of peace, will know where the responsibility for failure lies.

"I urge that no nation assume such a responsibility and that all the nations join in these great conferences and translate their professed policies into action. This is the way to political and economic peace."

RAZED BY FIRE

700 Homeless As Main Section of Auburn, Maine, Is Swept By Flames.

Auburn, Maine, May 16 (AP)—Restoration of a gaping hole in its new Auburn section, where 240 buildings, including the homes of one-twelfth of the city's population, were destroyed by fire yesterday with loss exceeding $1,000,000, was the problem facing this city today.

The homeless, most of whom were workers in the mills of Lewiston across the Androscoggin river, were estimated by City Manager Frederick W. Ford to number between 1,400 and 1,600.

Most of the victims, possibly three-fourths of their number, Ford estimated, had found shelter today with relatives and friends in other sections of the city. The others were being cared for by relief agents.

Auburn, Maine, May 16 (AP)—Fire raging through the New Auburn section of this city late Monday devastated an area four blocks wide and nearly two miles long, destroying at least 200 homes and places of business and rendering more than 700 persons homeless.

A public schoolhouse, a synagogue and a parochial school were among the buildings destroyed. A Catholic church in almost the very center of the fire-swept area, withstood the flames.

Incendiarism Suspected
With the Ellsworth incendiary fire of a week ago Sunday night foremost in the minds of everyone in this vicinity, the possibility that the Auburn catastrophe may also have been the work of an incendiary was widely discussed. Arthur Pontbriant, owner of the garage in which the fire started, expressed the opinion that the blaze had been set. Authorities, however, said they knew no basis for the rumors of arson.

Harrassed city officials, rushing about in a frantic effort to organize relief efforts, would make no estimate of the amount of loss. Most observers, however, believed the damage would be more than $2,000,000 and none estimated less than $1,000,000.

Spread Incredibly Swift

The city has a population of 18,000. The blaze started about 1 p. m., in Pontbriant's garage, from what cause firemen were unable to determine. A high wind fanned the flames in three directions, igniting closely packed tenement houses. The timber-dry structures, three to five stories high, burst into flames with incredible rapidity. A triangular space containing nearly twenty buildings was a roaring furnace almost before the first hose line was laid.

Fists And Eggs Fly As Aftermath Of Student Strike At Columbia

New York, May 16 (AP)—Students clashed in free-for-all fights across the campus of Columbia university Monday as the aftermath of a strike to protest the authorities' failure to renew the contract of Donald Henderson, radical instructor in economics.

Eyes were blackened, eggs were thrown, clothes were torn and anti-Henderson students inadvertently played a hose on the police when the stream failed to reach the demonstrators, but only three arrests were made.

The strike, in which some 500 students participated, started with peaceable picketing, display of banners and distribution of circulars, but bloomed into a general melee around a mass-meeting at which the speakers included Diego Rivera, whose work on a mural at Rockefeller Center was stopped last week because of his portraying Lenin in the painting.

The Mexican painter compared his dismissal with the case of Henderson and said freedom was at stake in both situations. While he was speaking a student attempted

Roosevelt Ready To Name Envoys

Washington, May 16—President Roosevelt was authoritatively reported Monday to have tentatively selected a delegation of five members to represent America at the world economic conference, including Secretary Hull, Newton D. Baker, James M. Cox, Bernard M. Baruch and Chairman Pittman, of the senate foreign relations committee.

The three chosen from private life are among the biggest figures in the democratic party. Cox was the party candidate for president in 1920. Baker was wartime secretary of war and prominently mentioned for presidential candidate in several campaigns. Baruch, New York financier, has been a close advisor of all presidents since the war when he was chairman of the war industries board.

Some republicans are understood to have discouraged the suggestion that one of their party be sent to London, because the subjects slated for discussion there include some of the major issues between the two parties.

BONUS MARCH IS FRUSTRATED

Police And Secret Service Men Break Up Parade By Irreconcilables.

Washington, May 16 (AP)—A Sabbath quiet hung over the government-provided encampment of 1,200 bonus seekers at Fort Hunt, Virginia, Sunday, while the only dash of excitement to the day's cash-payment movement was provided by a small group of "irreconcilables" who made a brief and very unsuccessful effort to march on the White House.

A dozen men under the leadership of Joseph Salzman of Brooklyn, whose die-hard band refused to join the comfortably fed contingent at the Virginia camp, hoisted flags brought for the purpose and turned toward the White House from their sheltering city "camp."

They got as far as Pennsylvania avenue. A squad of bluecoats led by Ernest Brown, superintendent of police, and surrounded by secret service agents, suddenly surrounded them.

The group was placed under technical arrest, but after a round of conversation the marchers were escorted back to their open-air headquarters.

"We want to see President Roosevelt," Salzman said. "I knew him when he was governor. I stood beside him once when he was making a campaign speech."

The president, however, was sailing down the Potomac river at the time and the White House was virtually deserted.

Arendtsville Is Blanked, 8 To 0

Littlestown high took undisputed possession of first place in the Adams county scholastic league by blanking Arendtsville at Littlestown Monday afternoon, 8-0.

C. Worley and P. Ecker shared the twirling honors for Littlestown and did not yield a run or hit.

A quartet of runs in the first and again in the sixth gave last year's champs an easy conquest. Neuman led the attack with three hits, one going for two bases.

DR. FITZGERALD ADDRESSES CLUB

Railroad's Public Relations Official Denounces "Raids On Treasury."

The demand for so-called "bigger and better" and the exploitation of the products of "miracle men" with "the taxpayers' money" were denounced by Dr. J. M. Fitzgerald, of Pittsburgh, vice chairman of the committee on public relations of the eastern railroads, in an address Monday evening before the Rotary club of Gettysburg.

Doctor Fitzgerald declared that "much of the present difficulty is due to the fact that we have abandoned our original plan of government as something to live under and have set a government as something to live on; that one-sixth of the people of the United States are living on the government and that the other five-sixths are paying the bill."

"Farm Relief"
"All treasury raids in recent years," he said, "have been labeled farm relief" and farm relief "has consisted of relieving farmers of taxes until recently when it has extended to relieving them of their farms as well."

"The latest proposed raid," he said, "is the St. Lawrence Waterways proposal." He pointed out that the United States is "suffering from a surplus of transportation facilities, that billions of dollars of the taxpayers' money have been spent on air mail subsidies, inland waterways and highways and that it is now proposed to create a new transportation avenue at an initial cost of a billion dollars which will cost the taxpayers twenty millions a year for maintenance."

Doctor Fitzgerald said that "our government started with a constitution, a code of ideals, George Washington and a congress and that we still have a congress." He said that "the way out of the depression is to return to the simple program of our forefathers of a government devoted to national defense and other real governmental functions, permitting the people to handle their industrial and agricultural affairs."

His address was the eighth annual address to the club by Doctor Fitzgerald. The program also included solos by Captain George R. Hedger, assistant professor of military science and tactics at Gettysburg college, who was accompanied by Professor W. Frederick Shaffer. Additional guests were Dr. Howard Stonesifer, of Littlestown; David Snyder, of Millintown; and William F. Webb, of Shippensburg.

The White Cockatoo

By Mignon G. Eberhart

SYNOPSIS: After the unexpected arrival of Francis Tally in the little hotel in Southern France where his sister Sue lived, they, with the other guests, visit the police, for there have been three murders in the hotel, all connected, so Jim Sundeen and the detective, David Lorn, feel, with an attempt to secure the token which will prove Sue's right to her share of her father's great fortune. They ask that Sue and Francis may leave the town; the police refuse. On the way back to the hotel Sue whispers to Sundeen that she has lost the token.

Chapter 38

THE VANISHED BLOT

"Well—" it was Madame Grethe entering from the lounge. Her green gown caught highlights in its curves, and the white cockatoo clung to her shoulder, looking inquisitively from one to the other of us. "Well," she said again. "Will the police now permit you to leave?"

She heard of their refusal with a face that did not alter a shade in its suavely amiable lines. Watching her, it was difficult to believe—as I certainly had believed, watching her husband's reception of the news—that that refusal affected any plan they might have made.

Either it had not, or she was a better actor than her husband. Perhaps the look of secret reflection in her catlike eyes deepened, but her face remained smooth and friendly, with only dark lines under her eyes and a certain pinched look about her nostrils showing the strain of the last few days. Grethe was always friendly; usually amiable.

When Lorn, who had explained dryly and briefly, finished, her soft shoulders rippled slightly under the silk, she lifted one squarish but very white hand to caress the cockatoo's neck and said:

"Ah—well—the detectives from Paris will do something. The police here—" She left her sentence unfinished meaningly. "We may have you here for several days more, then. Heaven send they be better days."

She said it quite honestly—at least, that was the effect. I heartily agreed with her.

At the same time I'd have thought more of it as a wish if I had been entirely sure it was Heaven and not Madame Grethe herself with whom the responsibility lay. I reminded myself that I hadn't, actually, a shadow of a clue against her, and moved nearer the register which lay open on the tall desk at my side.

Grethe had turned to Sue and was talking of her leaving them in a very frank and pleasant manner—a manner which nevertheless contrived to emphasize Sue's long year with them and, somehow, the friendliness of the Lovschiem's toward Sue and her mother—while Francis and Lorn, equally non-committal in expression, waited and perforce listened.

As she talked I was looking with interest at Francis Tally's name scrawled across the open page, and trying to recall the interwoven initials below his typed signature in the letter Lorn had brought. It was true that he had recognized Lorn; true, which was more important, that Lorn had recognized him.

Still, as Lorn himself had said, it is well to prove things before resting a case on them. I could not recall the exact characteristics of those intricate initials with enough accuracy to compare them with the signature. I must ask Sue to permit me to look at the letter again.

But there was something about that page that was wrong. Something that had nothing to do with Francis Tally's signature.

There were three names on it: my own, David Lorn's, and Francis Tally's. It was exactly the same as it had been when I looked at it last, which was on the occasion of David Lorn's arrival—exactly the same except, of course, for the addition of Francis Tally's name.

Yet it was not as it had been when I signed it at the top of the page.

Something tugged and pulled at my memory a second and then made itself definite, so definite that I wondered that I had not seen the discrepancy immediately upon my looking at the page at the time of Lorn's arrival.

It was simple, trivial. And yet by reason of its very triviality must be somehow important.

There wasn't an ink blot.

And there had been an ink blot in that page when I signed my own name, under the cockatoo's suspicious eye, the very evening of my arrival in that ill-omened hotel.

Now there was no ink blot. Yet there were no signs whatever of erasure; the page was smooth and glazed. And there was my own name in my own writing.

They were talking behind me, but I did not hear what they were saying. Under cover of the conversation I leaned nearer the book, and, luckily, caught a highlight from the window near by on the glimmering surface of the paper.

Then I was sure. My signature was still in my own handwriting; that was true. But it had been traced on that page with a sharp instrument and then followed with pen and ink.

And it was not too well done; with police it wouldn't have stood a test one moment. Even I, no policeman and, God knows, no amateur detective, could readily discern the forgery.

But the forgery began and ended with my own name. Lorn's and Tally's signatures were clearly not traced.

Why, then?

The explanation was simple and swift. Something had made the removal of that page imperative. It had become imperative after my arrival and before Lorn's. And it was nothing of an innocent nature, such as a bad tear or more spilled ink, for Lovschiem, in such a case, would have merely asked me to register again, and explained the need for it.

No, the very fact of careful and painstaking forgery of my name proved that there was a hidden and probably incriminating reason for it—incriminating to whom, I could not know, although it pointed strongly to Lovschiem, and was thus practically the only material clue I had so far discovered which led to him.

Suddenly I realized that I was looking too long and too closely at behind me, but I looked up quickly the page. There were still voices and met Lovschiem's eyes. I endeavored to look blank and unconcerned. I even said in a casual way to Tally, "Your home's in the South, then," as if I'd been only guilty of idle curiosity.

There was no way to know, however, whether my small ruse succeeded with Lovschiem or not. His eyes still followed me when I left the lobby, and as I started upstairs I glanced back from the landing and saw him bending over the register.

JOINT SALES PLAN POPULAR

Drop In Value Of 1932 Business But Little Change In Volume Noted.

Sales statistics compiled by the bureau of markets, state department of agriculture, show that Pennsylvania farmers transacted a total business of $30,836,619 through their cooperative associations in 1932 as compared with $42,717,389 in 1931. Although the sales in 1932 were 27.6 per cent less in value, the volume or tonnage handled by these organizations was nearly as large as in the preceding year. Small declines in the quantities of milk, fruits, vegetables and wool marketed as well as the tonnage of feed, fertilizer and seed purchased took place, but twice as many head of livestock and ten times as many eggs were marketed by cooperatives last year as the year before.

Milk Volume Less

Milk marketing associations, which transact three-fourths of the total farmers' cooperative business in this state, handled 641,615 tons of milk against 688,761 tons in 1931, a decrease of 6.84 per cent. A total of 20,548 tons of fruits and vegetables were sold cooperatively in 1932 compared with 20,663 tons the year before, a decrease of only one-half per cent, but the value of these products was nearly 30 per cent less than in 1931 due chiefly to a decline in the prices of mushrooms and grapes.

Livestock marketing associations sold 12,029 head of livestock for Pennsylvania members in 1932 against 5,616 head the year before, a gain of 114 per cent. Egg marketing organizations handled 393,778 dozens of eggs as compared with 29,334 dozens in 1931, an increase of 956 per cent. The volume of wool marketed in 1932 was 179,511 pounds against 188,035 pounds in 1931, a decrease of 4.53 per cent, and the purchase of farm supplies (feed, fertilizer, seeds, lime and spray materials) dropped from 219,907 tons in 1931 to 210,731 tons in 1932, a decline of 4.17 per cent.

The marketing of farm products comprised 81.68 per cent of the business transacted cooperatively by Pennsylvania farmers in 1932 and the purchasing of farm supplies amounted to 18.32 per cent of the total.

START ATTACK ON "NEW DEAL"

Republicans Launch Long Awaited Attack On Policy Of Administration.

By Herbert Plummer

Washington—In the opinion of many political observers in the capital, the long-awaited republican offensive against the democratic program and policies has at last been launched.

It has been expected for some time now. The reason it has been so long delayed, many think, is that the leaders feared the country might interpret the move as one merely to secure political advantage at the expense of a democratic president.

Therefore, politics virtually has been at a standstill since the beginning of the special session. With the next congressional elections more than a year away, the G. O. P. forces have remained largely under cover.

The proposal to inflate the currency, however, provided the republicans with an issue which they couldn't afford to ignore. Out they came equipped for battle.

For The Record's Sake

There was not one of them, perhaps, who actually entertained hopes that the Thomas amendment, setting up the inflation machinery, could be defeated. The leaders knew that not only would the democrats back the proposal, but also that votes would be had for inflation from their own ranks.

The fight had to be made, however. Everything that they had warned against in the years gone by was at stake. The record had to be kept straight at all costs.

The republican party had to be placed in the position where it could say to the country, "I told you so" if this attempt to bring the country back to its feet should fail.

Thus there appeared on the scene in Washington none other than Ogden L. Mills, secretary of the treasury in the Hoover administration. Mills was regarded as the leader in the anti-inflation drive.

He had as his chief aid, Senator Reed, of Pennsylvania, who carried the brunt of the fight on the senate floor. With these two in command, the big drive began.

Humor—And Its Lack

Nothing was overlooked. For example, one read on the bulletin board of the press gallery of how Senator Reed, at the request of house leaders, attended the republican caucus on that side of the capital and addressed the gathering on the subject of inflation.

On the floor of the senate one witnessed little significant episodes like this: Reed is thundering against inflation. Vandenberg, of Michigan, interrupts, walks over to him and proffers a hundred billion German mark note now worth 2½ cents. Reed thanks him, and begs that he accept in payment a 10,000 Russian ruble note. The senate laughs.

But some ardent inflationists fail to see the humor in these little incidents. One, in the house, became so enraged at Mills' activity that he introduced a resolution to investigate "Lobbyist" Mills, as he termed him, and clear him out of the capitol.

Looking Around

Owing to the continued rainy weather, the twilight league game scheduled to be played between Doc Crist's Old Timers and Two Taverns, at Two Taverns, has been postponed from Wednesday evening until Friday evening.

The Gettysburg high school track team will engage in its final meet of the season Saturday when Hancock high sends its cindermen here.

of the agricultural department have traveled 25,000 miles and have been in 44 states, six provinces of Canada, and Mexico.

One addition has been made to the building since 1917. An auditorium was built in 1922 costing approximately $7,000. This money was subscribed by the citizens of the community and the alumni association.

Active In Community

The school has always taken an active interest in community affairs. The principal community enterprise, with which the school has allied itself, is the South Mountain fair. The supervisor of agriculture, with G. W. Koser, organized the first fair board and the supervisor furnished the working plan of the fair. This was in the fall of 1921 and every year since the school has contributed to the success of the fair by furnishing labor and many exhibits.

The Arendtsville Vocational school has served the community in the past, but with a forward look and a mind to serve, the Arendtsville Vocational school will endeavor itself to its students, its graduates and to the people of the community to an extent which has not yet been realized.

for a dual conflict.

The Gettysburg firemen are scheduled to play at York Springs Wednesday evening but unless the rain abates soon and allows the field to dry, it seems likely another postponement is in the offing.

Much repairing will have to be done on the playground diamond before it will be in condition for a game. The local firemen are scheduled to meet Cashtown here Saturday afternoon. A corps of workmen are awaiting better weather before beginning to condition the grounds.

Jake McCloy, former Gettysburg college athlete, property of the Newark baseball team of the International league, worked out with the college team Monday afternoon. McCloy is in the dark as to his future and will report to the Bears later this month.

FOLLOWS RULES IN MOVIE WORK

Mae West's Success Laid To Following Two Rules; Zanuck Retires.

By Robbin Coons

Hollywood—Mae West's screen character—hard, dazzling and spectacular—is no lily, yet it requires some expert gilding.

All writers who work on Mae's pictures—for her next they're Claude Binyon and Frank Butler—observe two rules, which indicate something of Miss West's shrewd showmanship.

No star likes to be heavy, not even Mae, and her first requirement is that if she is to portray a not too spotless flower she shall be surrounded in the cast by others less savory. Deft contrast, you see, making for audience sympathy.

The second is that Mae, whatever else she may do, must not hurt anybody. Men can ruin themselves for her, but Mae won't have a hand in the business.

Sensation

Darryl Zanuck's retirement from the Warner organization was something of a Hollywood sensation. Another followed it when the young production general shortly afterward announced his affiliation with Joseph Schenck in a producing arrangement.

From the start Zanuck's been a showman. He used showmanship in his movie crashing. He wanted to be a writer. Broke, he trudged around Hollywood making the studios, got nowhere until he took a cue from one refusal. "We're using only established writers." An established writer, he learned, was one who had a book published; so Zanuck had a book published locally and became an "established writer."

It was as a writer that he joined Warner Bros., the studio where he was to become production chief.

He is hard-driving, tirelessly energetic, shrewd, loud-talking. He doesn't spout about art, and yet some of his pictures have had a claim to it. He has no working hours, and yet almost any hour he can be found at work—except when he's playing polo, which he manages to do often.

Maybe He Remembers

He has a reputation for giving younger writers a chance. Carl Erickson, a lad who came to his office seeking a job, is on the studio staff now and doing well. The executive—all executives are supposed to be stony-hearted—probably remembered his own weary attempts to connect with a studio.

69 CHICAGO BUILDINGS

TO BE SEIZED FOR TAXES

Chicago, May 16 (AP).—Cook county took action Monday to seize sixty-nine Chicago hotels, theatres, office buildings and club properties and operate them to obtain payment of delinquent taxes.

The total tax delinquency against the properties is $3,023,314. Attorneys for the county treasurer filed petitions for county receiver-ship under the Skarda act recently passed by the legislature.

After settlement of the tax bills the properties would revert automatically to the owners. Among the properties named in petitions were the Embassy hotel, the South Shore country club, Sherman hotel annex, Eastgate hotel and buildings of the Illinois Steel company.

Read The Bible With Us Daily

Listen O isles, unto me; and hearken, ye people, from far; the Lord hath called me from the womb; from the bowels of my mother hath he made mention of my name.

And he hath made my mouth
like a sharp sword; in the shadow of his hand hath he hid me, and made me a polished shaft; in his quiver hath he hid me;

And said unto me, Thou art my servant, O Israel, in whom I will be glorified.

Then I said, I have laboured in vain, I have spent my strength for nought, and in vain; yet surely my judgment is with the Lord, and my work with the Lord.

And now, saith the Lord that formed me from the womb to be his servant, to bring Jacob again to him, Though Israel be not gathered, yet shall I be glorious in the eyes of the Lord, and my God shall be my strength.

And he said, It is a light thing that thou shouldst be my servant to raise up the tribes of Jacob, and to restore the preserved of Israel: I will also give thee for a light to the Gentiles, that thou mayest be my salvation unto the end of the earth.
Isaiah 49:1-6.

Snyder, of Gettysburg, and while attending Pennsylvania college he volunteered his services in defence of the government during the rebellion. He graduated with the class of '67, taught a while in the high school of this place. He was licensed to preach the gospel in 1875 after attending the Lutheran theological seminary at Philadelphia. He served a charge at West Pikeland, Chester county, until the fall of 1881, when his health failed and he took up his residence at Allentown, having married a Miss Newhard, of that place.

William Hay, Esq., one of the leading members of the York bar, died on Sunday morning, aged 47 years. He graduated from Pennsylvania college with the class of '56, was admitted to the bar at York in 1858, and had acquired a large practice. For some years he was a partner of the late Hon. Thomas E.
Cochran, and since the latter's death he attended personally to the large and responsible practice. His health broke down during the last year under a severe attack of pneumonia, which left his system in a nervous and depressed condition.

Mr. Hay married Miss Sara J., daughter of Hon. Joel B. Danner, of this place, in 1865. A week or two ago he came to Gettysburg for a rest and relief from business, but not being much benefited by the change, he returned to York.

dec'd., of this place, have made an amicable partition of the real estate coming to them from their father and under the will of their grandmother—D. W. Ziegler, taking the brick dwelling and store building on Baltimore street; Mrs.
Barker the brick dwelling on West Middle street, and Miss Carrie Ziegler the frame dwelling on East Middle street.

The executors of Joseph Wible, dec'd., have sold to Jacob C. Herbst 2½ acres of land in Straban town-midst, and Mr. Jacob Heyser, of Chambersburg, was also a visitor here last week.

John A. Knouse has returned from Millersville Normal school on account of bad health.

Mrs. Abraham Hoffman, of Quaker Valley, and Mrs. Daniel Bucher, near this place, two worthy ladies and mothers of families, were laid in our cemeteries during the past week.

On Saturday Ezra Taylor, of this place, was thrown from a wagon, the horse running off and throwing him on his head. He was delirious for a time, but we understand he is better now.

The tonnage of commercial feeds bought by Ohio farmers in 1932 was

Local Girl Wed At Bible School

Miss Adlene Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Brown, of Gettysburg, and Charles C. Miller, of ried on Sunday, May 5, at Kimberaccessories to match. Both Mr. and Bible college the past four years and are members of the 1933 grad-which they will go to Schenectady for a short stay with Mr. Miller's mother.

Mr. and Mrs. Miller will make their home in Morristown, Tennes-

2, MURDERED, FOUND IN RUINS

74-year-old Farmer And 76-year-old Sister Found Dismembered.

Indiana, Pa., May 16 (AP)—The dismembered bodies of James H. Allison, 74, prominent Indiana county farmer, and his sister, Miss Belle Allison, 76, were found Sunday in the burning ruins of their farm house.

Police said apparently they were murdered and their home, five miles from Indiana, burned to conceal the crime. The heads, arms and legs were missing.

Miners who discovered the fire while returning from work said they saw a car roar away from the flaming farm house.

The men roused neighbors and tried to put out the fire and rescue Allison and his sister. They failed to find them and the house burned to the ground.

Murder Evidence
County authorities, headed by District Attorney William Ruckdick, and state police found the victims later. They were lying in the living room on the first floor.

Sheriff A. Eugene Wilson said there was evidence the Allisons were slain. He said neighbors reported the fire started in the rear of the house and that the couple would have had ample time to escape. The bodies were partly clad.

Dr. Frederick W. S. Clair, county coroner, said there was no evidence of attack on the parts of the bodies which were recovered. The head and limbs probably were destroyed by the fire, he added.

Allison made his home with his sister since the death of his wife years ago. He is survived by one daughter, Mrs. W. M. Neel, of Pittsburgh.

and Janet Slonaker and Hester Allison are patrol leaders.

About New York

By William Gaines

New York—Somebody always is puncturing the belief that this is such a callous city, in an unrelenting hurry.

For example: a woman started to walk across urbane Madison avenue at Sixty-fourth street just as the light turned red against her. The north-south traffic growled into action. She did a chicken-hop, dashed ahead and somehow lost her hat in the maelstrom.

We were in a taxi alongside a north-bound trolley, which stopped with a jolt. Our taxi stopped. The whole procession behind us was held up.

The motorman left his car waiting, recovered the hat, scurried to the west curb and handed it to the flustered woman. Then he saluted, ran back to the trolley and speeded it onward, with much bell clanging. And Madison's traffic began to undo the jam for blocks to the south.

Roof-Top Fans

Yankee stadium hasn't got any holes in the walls to accommodate peep-hole fans, but this town, like most others where there's any sort of a baseball park, has its share of diamond bugs who watch from the house-tops.

At the Yanks' opener, the Boston Red Sox were the lambs up for sacrifice and the day was so chilly that my teeth still dance when I think about it. Despite all that, many dozens watched the whole game from roofs and other high places. Some were so far away they were using field-glasses, and one fellow peered through a telescope.

They nearly fell off their perches, bobbing with joy when Babe Ruth slashed a single past elephantine Dale Alexander on his first time at bat.

Helpmate

Among the wives of writing men, few have been more sacrificing and conscientious helpmates than Dorothy Kreymborg.

She was ambitious to be an artist before her marriage, 14 years ago. But she put art out of her mind to concentrate on assisting her husband in every possible way. She could type. He wrote in long hand—volumes of poetry and criticism, and plays, too. Every bit of this material she copied.

The arrangement worked well. Alfred Kreymborg reached the point where writing ceased to be such a daily bread-and-butter grind. Five years ago he told his wife that if she wanted to resume her studies they could afford it. She pitched into her art again, here and in Paris.

Kreymborg turned novelist. No sooner was his first novel off the press than Mrs. Kreymborg got word of arrangements for the first public showing of her paintings.

Her work has attracted almost as much attention as his novel. Nevertheless, she says, she doesn't intend to let anything interfere with her helping her husband. She thinks she can attend to his scripts better than any one else.

"ELECTRIC EYE" FOILS FOUR MASKED ROBBERS

Philadelphia, May 16 (AP)—An invisible "electric eye" foiled four masked men as they prepared early Sunday to blast a big safe in a department store in suburban Millbourne.

Concealing themselves in the store before it was closed for the night, the men bound and gagged a night watchman and gathered up tools from counters to help in opening the safe.

But as they approached it the "electric eye" sounded an alarm. They left a quantity of nitro-glycerine at the safe in their sudden flight.

USE TEAR GAS IN MILK STRIKE

Wisconsin Farmers Engage In Battle With Deputies; Dump Milk Trucks.

Elkhorn, Wis., May 16 (AP)—Enraged farmers, waging their milk strike, Sunday battled through dense clouds of tear gas south of Mukwonago to dump six truck loads of milk destined for the Chicago market.

Fists and clubs flew as strikers pelted non-strikers to flight, and from a few rods distant deputy sheriffs tossed the gas bombs which made 400 farmers and truck drivers gasp for air and cover their eyes.

Thirty-five deputy sheriffs were kept from the thick of the fight by a county line. The battle took place a few yards inside of Walworth county. The officers were deputies of Waukesha county. They would not charge across the line with their riot sticks and pistols,

Two Quakes Are Felt In Frisco

San Francisco, Cal., May 16 (AP)—Two sharp earthquakes awakened residents throughout the San Francisco bay area at 3:45 a. m.

Street lights went out in Santa Rosa, 50 miles north of here, when the shocks disrupted the electric but they did hurl many bombs.

Gas Sweeps Back on Deputies
Clouds of gas, borne by a gentle south wind, wafted back into the faces of the deputies. Some managed to get on their gas masks, but others were as much affected as the farmers, who were the targets.

The truck drivers and a few private guards armed with clubs were no match for the aroused farmers. Clubs were wrested from the guards. Some farmers rushed into the fray with milk-can covers in their hands. While some battled the truck drivers others tossed milk cans to the pavement and milk settled several inches deep in a depression in a pasture. Some of the tear gas drifted over to two farms and the owners complained that their cows and pigs were made ill.

system. A few clocks were stopped and windows broken in San Francisco. No other damage was reported.

Although Professor P. Byerly, University of California seismologist, described the shock as a "minor one," many people fled from their homes.

Old time residents in Oakland and San Francisco, however, termed the quake as "the worst in years."

Sacramento, 25 miles northeast of here; Saxon, 75 miles to the east, and peninsula towns to the south, reported feeling the shock. It was not felt in southern California.

"WHY I LIKE A LIVING TRUST"

"WILL FATTEN MY LEAN YEARS"

"Being a doctor my biggest earnings are between 35 and 55. So I am using a Living Trust to keep my surplus income properly invested. I add to it each year, and if I don't need all the income I add the remainder to the principal."

"Then when I'm older, I'll let younger men do more of the work, and be able to rest comfortably myself. Reasonably free from income worries. With more time for charity patients."

"And after I'm all through, this same Living Trust will help provide a living for my family."

* * *
Thousands of business and professional men over the country now have Living Trusts to provide regular income and "fatten their lean years." Come in and let us explain what a Living Trust can do for you.
